Datebook: A key L.A. painter celebrates 90 years, Joan Snyder's first L.A. show and Austronesian art

By Carolina A. Miranda

April 29, 2016

FINAL WEEK

“Zoë Buckman: Every Curve,” at Papillion. The British artist takes vintage lingerie and embroiders it with phrases from classic hip-hop tracks by the likes of Biggie Smalls and Tupac Shakur. The beguiling installation — objects dangling daintily from the ceiling — tells a deeper story about the contradictory ways in which women are regarded in the popular culture.

Through Saturday. 4336 Degnan Blvd., Leimert Park, Los Angeles, papillionart.com
